Introduction

You're ready to start selling online – congrats!

You've done all of the hard work in creating your website and there's just one step left: choosing your payment processor.

There are many different ways to accept payment for your information products, but one of the most important things to consider is that your payment processor gives you the option to streamline the process – from your customer ordering your product to gaining instant access to the download page.

Customers don't want to wait for access to what they've paid for, especially when it comes to digital items.

And there's another thing to keep in mind. It's often easier to guide your visitors through the payment process when they are already familiar with the processor you choose. Not only will this reassure them that their payment details are secure, but when customers recognize your payment processor and are familiar with the checkout process, there'll be far less abandoned carts, as they know exactly what they have to do to purchase the product, and what to expect in terms of delivery.

You also want to consider fees, and how much you are charged for every item sold. Many of the established payment processors online will charge you based on volume, while other payment processors (including merchant accounts) charge you additional monthly account maintenance fees, so you want to be very thorough when evaluating payment processors so that you're not caught off guard with item or service fees at the end of the month.

And finally, evaluate their dispute resolution process.

Find out how they handle refund requests or chargeback's. Do you they give you the opportunity to save a sale? Are you charged a fee for settled disputes?

You need to know as much as you can about your payment processor, so that you go into an agreement with your eyes wide open.

Let's take a closer look at the most common methods of accepting payment online!

ClickBank

ClickBank | <http://www.ClickBank.com>

ClickBank is the largest digital marketplace online, serving thousands of web-based businesses that offer a wide variety of unique products throughout hundreds of niche markets.

ClickBank ultimately serves as an intermediary between a customer and merchants who have chosen to feature their information products within ClickBank's ever-growing marketplace.

So, not only will ClickBank handle all payment processing as well as refunds on your behalf, but by featuring your product within their marketplace, you'll gain instant exposure while being able to recruit affiliate partners to promote your information product.

Affiliate marketers trust ClickBank. They know that they'll get paid on time, and they're familiar with how the Clickbank affiliate program works. This familiarity and trust will help you recruit affiliates easier, because rather than running an in-house affiliate program that you are required to manage, they don't have to worry about receiving their commissions on time.

Since there are no costs associated with becoming an affiliate within the ClickBank marketplace and acceptance is automatic, eliminating the need to sign up for individual affiliate programs, affiliates are drawn to the ClickBank marketplace, where they can instantly search for quality products to promote, making ClickBank one of the most lucrative sources for direct access to experienced and qualified affiliates partners.

Plus, affiliate marketers frequently browse the ClickBank marketplace looking for new products to promote, so it's likely that you'll be able to pick up new affiliates without even trying, just by prominently placing your product in the marketplace.

ClickBank is one of the easiest and cost effective methods of connecting your product with its target audience by offering all vendors with the opportunity to promote their product within their marketplace for a one-time, low fee of only $49.95, a wise investment for anyone who is serious about taking their business to the next level.

This set up fee is payable only after your first product has been approved and ready for placement within the marketplace.

PayDotCom

PayDotCom | <http://www.PayDotCom.com>

PayDotCom is similar to ClickBank in that they offer exposure within their marketplace, however there is one big difference between PayDotCom and ClickBank in terms of how they process payments.

Rather than accept payment for your product and then issue you payment every two weeks like ClickBank does, PayDotCom simply redirects your buyer to pay you directly through your Paypal account, meaning that you'll gain instant access to funds, rather than waiting for a check to be cut.

The downside is that you are responsible for any refund requests, as well as having to pay your affiliates for all commissions earned on a regular basis. In addition, while the PayDotCom marketplace is consistently growing, it doesn't offer as much exposure as ClickBank does.

With PayDotCom, you are charged a one-time lifetime membership fee of $29.00, and are then able to submit an unlimited number of products into the marketplace.

With ClickBank, you'll need to pay a one-time fee of $49.97 and while you are able to submit up to 100 additional products, only one product will appear in the marketplace.

This means that if you want additional information products to be given equal exposure, you'll want to set up a new account for every product you create. It can get costly, but you'll want to consider the difference in exposure between both marketplaces to determine what marketplace you feel is more beneficial to launching your product and maximizing profits.

Another thing to consider with PayDotCom is that your product doesn't require approval, meaning that it is visible and active within their marketplace from the moment you create the listing.

With ClickBank, the first product in your account will need to be approved, but once your initial product is given a thumbs up, every other product you add into the same account requires no further approval.

There are also no maximum price restrictions with PayDotCom, but with ClickBank, the maximum default price is $50, although you can request a price limit increase by contacting the ClickBank support department.

Since there are no costs associated with opening an account with either PayDotCom or ClickBank, we suggest creating a merchant account with both providers, and taking the time to go through the options and features so that you can decide which system will work best for you.

Quick & Easy Set Up

First, create a Pay Dot Com vendor account and then log in and click on the My Products tab at the very top of the page. Choose “Create a New Product” and you’ll land on a page with a form for you to fill out with the following information:

- Product Name
- Description
- Price
- Whether or Not It’s a Subscription (Recurring) Charge, and If So, the Billing Period
- An email where you’ll be notified about receipts for each sale
- The option to ONLY use PayPal
- Your Sales Page URL
- Your Thank You (Download) Page URL
- Options About Gathering Shipping Addresses or Other Personal Information, Whether the Affiliates Are Automatically Approved, and Whether It’s Shown in the Marketplace

Then you’ll set the commission payouts and levels and choose if you want to pay them a percentage or flat fee. Enter the PayPal address that you want payments going to and then verify your options before clicking the next step. Here you’ll get to format your order form (if you like, otherwise leave the default settings).

On the last step, you can add additional payment options.

When you're finished, click "I am done" and your product will be added to the marketplace for affiliates to see once it's made its first sale. Buy it for yourself and get it into the marketplace quickly so affiliates can start promoting it!

Setting Up With E-Junkie

If you are new to information product marketing, and you're interested in running a small, internal launch before featuring your product on the larger markets, consider setting up a payment processing account with <http://www.e-junkie.com>

Note: e-Junkie is NOT a stand-alone payment processor, but is a shopping cart service provider that works to deliver your information products using many different payment processors including Paypal and 2Checkout.

You can reap the benefits of instant download and order verification with full product protection by setting up an e-junkie account, and integrating it with the payment processor of your choice.

E-junkie is not only affordable but also very easy to use, and best of all, it's designed to work with a number of payment processors, so you'll receive instant access to your earnings.

E-junkie also offers built-in protection, so you don't have to worry about adding security to download pages, as with your E-junkie account, you can choose to upload your products directly to their server and let their automated delivery system handle processing, or you can upload your product files to your own server, and let E-junkie encode download links, so that your customers are never shown the real download link.

E-junkie is a shopping cart system, so you can set up multiple product offers and your customers will be able to purchase multiple products at once simply by adding them to their cart prior to checkout.

Their system offers advanced protection as you don't have to create individual download pages for each of your products but instead, can upload all of your products into one folder, or directly to e-junkie's servers and let their system handle protection and delivery.

One of the greatest things about E-junkie is the flexibility you're given when setting up your products.

If you aren't interested in a "shopping cart" format, you can simply create individual purchase links that work in the same way as Paypal "Buy Now" buttons, directing customers through Paypal where they make their purchase and then automatically redirected to E-junkie where they can access their purchases.

E-junkie works with multiple payment processors as well, including Paypal, 2checkout, Google Checkout, Authorize.net, Clickbank and even Paypal Payments Pro.

Ejunkie also makes it easy for you to track your marketing campaigns as it integrates with Google Analytics, Yahoo Overture, MSN Adcenter and even Abrite Marketing channels.

Their transaction fees are lower than nearly any other payment processor, charging around 3% per sale rather than 7% or higher like the majority of merchant accounts.

Better yet, E-junkie doesn't charge based on per unit sold but rather a flat rate monthly fee that varies depending on the number of products you are selling and the space needed to house your products.

For example, a starter account is just $5 a month and gives you the opportunity to sell up to 10 products with 50mb of storage.

If you plan to sell a higher number of products, or you need more space in which to store your products on e-junkie servers, you can instantly upgrade your account to another service plan, such as their $15 monthly plan that offers 250mb per month.

Tip: Search www.RetailMeNot.com for E-junkie coupon codes and save money by extending your free trial account. There are always coupons available, with some of them offering up to 120 days of free access.

E-junkie also gives you the opportunity to set up an affiliate program, where you can set a flat rate or percentage based commission offer on all of your products, or customize your commission offer per product.

Again, you can assign a coupon that works for all of your featured products, or assign a discount coupon to individual products. You're also able to assign a maximum use count, so that the coupon can only be used a certain number of times before automatically expiring.

And finally, E-junkie even gives you the opportunity to set "time based" download links, so that you can customize the amount of time or even the number of downloads that a customer is allocated for their purchases.

This can offer a bit of extra protection against download links being distributed to non-paying buyers, and gives you the flexibility of customizing your sales system however you like.

You can even choose to have customers instantly redirected back to your own site so that you can better control the delivery process, as well as encourage customers to subscribe to your mailing list or newsletter.

E-junkie will keep a log of all purchases made, including your customers first and last name, and email address so you can download a copy of the database from within your E-junkie account at any time.

You can choose to search for specific transactions based on invoice number, transaction ID or by payer email address, or you can generate a snapshot of all payments and sales over a specific period of time.

Paypal

If you have a Paypal account, you might choose to accept payments directly through Paypal using their built-in payment button encryption.

Simply log into your Paypal account and click on “Merchant Tools” to browse through available options.

Authorize.net

If you're interested in a full featured merchant account that provides you with extended flexibility and features, Authorize.net is the Internet's most widely used merchant account provider.

With Authorize.net, you can easily integrate your merchant account into many different delivery and shopping cart options including e-Junkie.

There is a one time set up fee when using Authorize.net, along with monthly fees associated to your account (known as a "Monthly Gateway Fee") of around $20.00. Along with the set up fee and monthly fee, you'll also be charged a batch fee and transaction fee for each transaction.

While the fees can be quite costly, Authorize.net provides you with added flexibility and the ability to handle a high number of transactions each month. In addition, you'll be able to accept a wider range of payment types including all major credit cards.

Once you have an Authorize.net account, you'll be able to manage your transactions and preview sales within a secure administration panel.

And finally, another great benefit to using Authorize.net is in just how quickly you'll receive your payments. Authorize.net will deposit your finds into any business account you choose every few days.

You can find out more as well as apply for an Authorize.net merchant
